SURVIVORS FIGHT AGAINST SEX TRAFFICKING

- Bandhanmukti is a movement of victims of sex trafficking who are not only becoming instrument of delivering justice but also contributing in the prevention work to save vulnerable girls of South 24 Pargana of West Bengal from victims of sex trafficking.

- A platform for the victims of sex trafficking to fight stigma at family and community level.

- A collective advocacy with the local administration to ensure justice as well as for rehabilitation for the sex trafficking victims.

SEX TRAFFICKING IN SOUTH 24 PARGANAS

South 24 parganas is the largest district in West Bengal state and the sixth most populous districts in India. Due to poverty, lack of employment opportunities, child marriage, false promises of job, marriage, better life, social stigmas (widowed, divorced, unwed) etc. facilitate Trafficking and slavery of different forms. Most of the women go to other places in search of work and ultimately rescued from the brothels of Delhi, Mumbai, Pune Haryana and even Kolkata. West Bengal falls under huge criminal network where South 24 Parganas acts as a major sending point. Trafficking and consequent slavery with sexual exploitation is a multibillion dollar business. The blocks like Kultali, Canning I & II, Baruipur, Gosaba, Falta, Magrahat, Diamond Harbour I & II are identified as more migration and trafficking prone areas.
